

Data Sources

In Table 1, we provide sources of our data on NPIs at a national level. For less centrally managed countries, the aggregated (national level) date of the NPI is shown and the regional sources are displayed in Table 2 (United States), Table 3 (Germany), Table 4 (Spain), Table 5 (Canada), Table 6 (Australia), and Table 7 (Italy). Note that border closures are defined as a national closure of borders and is thus only considered at a national level.

In the following, we want to highlight some encoding decisions that were subject to internal discussions.

- School closure in New South Wales (Australia): Schools have remained technically open but attendance dropped below 5%. Therefore, schools have been encoded as closed.
- Border closure in the US: The US has not stopped flights to all countries but closed their land borders and has suspended travel from a huge number of Asian and European countries. Hence, US borders have been encoded as closed.
- Border closure in Germany: Germany has not closed its borders with Belgium and the Netherlands, therefore not all land borders have been closed and we have decided to encode them as open.
- School closure in Sweden: Only upper secondary schools (16+ y/o) and universities are closed, while other schools are still open. Thus, Swedish schools have been encoded as open.
- Venue closure in Belgium: In Belgium, bars and restaurants were ordered to close on April 14<sup>1</sup>, while other non-essential businesses followed only a few days later<sup>2</sup>. In Austria, shops were ordered to close on March 15, while bars and restaurants were allowed to stay open until 3pm<sup>3</sup>. In both cases, the earlier dates (April 14 and March 15) were considered as the dates when venues were closed.
